The Tour de France sped through Hackney on 7 July: thousands of spectators lined the streets to see their heroes in action

TOUR DE HACKNEY

HACKNEY was gripped by cycle fever as the Tour de France sped through the borough on 7 July.

Thousands of spectators lined the streets to cheer on cyclists in the world famous race as they zoomed through Hackney just after 3.30pm on the way to a dramatic, and wet, sprint finish along The Mall.

The elite riders headed down Ruckholt Road, Eastway and Waterden Road in Hackney Wick, before racing through Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park and into central London. Residents flocked to see their heroes in action, as the tour came to the UK for only the third time in history.

Oscar Serpell-Bell, eight, who is a member of Cycle Club Hackney, watched the race with his family.

He said: "Seeing the Tour in real life is really exciting. I want to be a professional cyclist when I grow up and Mark Cavendish is my hero."

The pre-Tour publicity caravan arrived in Hackney at around 1pm, whipping up excitement in the crowd and handing out promotional goodies.

Moritz Steiger, 48, a photographer from Hackney Central, said: "The Tour is something I've always wanted to see, so I couldn't miss the opportunity when it's right on my doorstep."

The first three stages – known as the Grand Depart – of the prestigious race took place in the UK from 5 to 7 July, with the third section covering 96 miles (155km) and passing through Cambridgeshire, Essex, North and East London before finishing in Westminster.

Marcel Kittel of Germany crossed the line first in three hours and 38 minutes, after also winning the opening stage in Yorkshire.

Matt Bailey, Valerie Faulkner and their son Luc, from Stoke Newington, went to the Olympic Park to watch the race. Matt said: "It was amazing, there was such a great atmosphere. We came here today because I'm a cycle geek, we love the Olympic Park and Val is half French – so we wouldn't have missed it for the world!"

Some 6,000 marshals and volunteers were on duty for the Tour, which has inspired a whole new generation of cyclists.

Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, said: "It was an absolute honour for Hackney to be able to host a section of the Tour, and I'm proud the community was able to give the riders such a warm welcome.

"It was exhilarating to know that the eyes of the world were turned upon us, albeit briefly, to see cycling's top talent compete for the yellow jersey.

"We're already London's number one cycling borough and I hope the Tour will have inspired yet more of our residents to take to their bikes and get active."

Hackney Today is published by the London Borough of Hackney. It has a print run of 108,000 copies and is delivered free to every home and business in the borough. The Council uses it to communicate public service information to residents. It is published fortnightly in order to carry statutory advertising, such as planning and traffic notices, which is cheaper for the taxpayer than using another local paper. The law does not allow for statutory notices to be published solely online or in a less frequent publication.

The paper's official, door-to-door delivery is 90,821 copies per issue, according to Audit Bureau of Circulations (ABC)

Power to pedestrians

PEDESTRIANS and cyclists now rule the road in London's most advanced shared street space, pioneered by the Council.

Using a Dutch design model, vehicle-focussed Leonard Circus, in Shoreditch, has been transformed into an attractive, people-orientated brick and granite public space. The famous 'Hitchcock's Reel' plinth that once stood in the middle of the road has been relocated to Shoreditch Park, close to Gainsborough Studios, where the film director made some of his first features.

The original diamond-shaped layout of Leonard Circus has been reintroduced, but it is now more user-friendly for people with accessibility

“The new layout means the car is no longer king here, instead the environment encourages more walking and cycling”

The newly designed Leonard Circus in Shoreditch is more cycle friendly needs. Kerbs have been removed, and road markings and traffic signs minimised to de-prioritise vehicles. Motorists at the low-traffic junction are expected to adapt their behaviour, drive more slowly and give way to those on foot and bike.

Trees and seating also take centre stage in the new layout, at the junction of Leonard Street and Paul Street. LED lighting and CCTV cameras will allow the space to be enjoyed safely 24 hours a day.

The Council also plans to introduce public wi-fi to cater for those working in nearby Tech City and to turn the junction into a vibrant, social focal point.

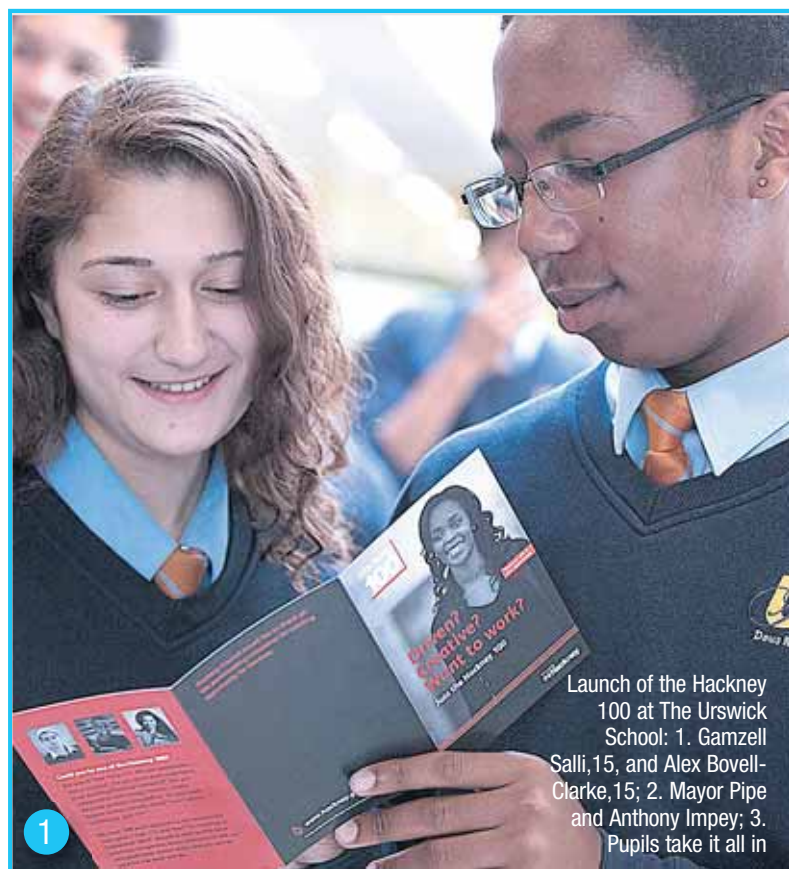

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: “Hackney is leading the way in creating forward-looking traffic management. More commuters travel by bike than car in Hackney and we're determined to cater for their needs.

“The new layout means the car is no longer king here, instead the environment encourages more walking and cycling, which is a key part of our transport vision and strategy.”

Launch a career with Hackney 100

A NEW initiative, which is set to give 100 Hackney teenagers the opportunity to gain paid work in local businesses, has been launched by the Council.

The 'Hackney 100' project aims to give 16 to 17-year-olds a foot on the career ladder by equipping them with the skills and experience needed to forge future careers.

Young people, who live or go to school in the borough, will be given the chance to work with local companies while building up their CVs. They will earn the London Living Wage and benefit from a dedicated business mentor. The placements are due to last for a minimum of six months.

Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, said: "Hackney is experiencing unprecedented growth – particularly in the creative and digital industries. We want residents to benefit from this and see local young people take full advantage of the opportunities the borough has to offer to help us continue our success story.

"With the Hackney 100, we are providing opportunities for teenagers to shape their future careers, and helping to re-establish a culture of paid work for school students at a time when the traditional Saturday job has become a distant memory.

"They will be paid the London Living Wage of £8.80 per hour, so those that take part can feel the value of earning their own money. This is an exciting opportunity for young people and businesses."

There are a number of roles on offer in Hackney across the different sectors, including technology, design, media, fashion, hospitality, catering, engineering and finance.

Anthony Impey, Chief Executive of Optimity, one of the participating employers, launched the scheme alongside Mayor Pipe on 25 June at The Urswick School, E9.

He said: "We're excited about the scheme and what it can offer young people in Hackney. This is about teaching young people what it means to go to work, do a job and earn a wage – and the responsibility that comes with that – as well as giving them valuable exposure to a work environment."

The placements will start from September and require four hours' work per week outside of school hours. Applications will be looked at by the Council's Ways into Work team. Interested applicants should apply by 22 August.

News in brief

Paid apprenticeships available

HACKNEY Homes is offering paid apprenticeships and training to residents aged between 16 and 18-years-old. Young people can apply to become apprentice electricians, gas engineers and multi-trade operatives. As well as gaining paid, on the job experience, the apprentices will learn construction skills by attending college one day a week and will receive an NVQ Level 3 qualification, or equivalent, on completion of their training. Apprentice electrician, Kurtis Knibbs, 18, is currently in his second year of apprenticeship. He said: "When you do an apprenticeship you get the best of both worlds. The training that we get at college is really good and I've also learnt a lot from my practical work. I've built friendships with electricians who have mentored me in Hackney Homes and everyone is really helpful."

Apprentice Kurtis Knibbs

Since the scheme began in 2001, 66 apprentices have completed their training and 45 have gained employment with Hackney Homes. The closing date for this round of applications is 18 July. To find out more about the scheme, or to apply, visit: www.hackneyhomes.org.uk/trade-apprenticeship-scheme; or call: 020 8356 6935.

Hackney playwright awarded an MBE for services to acting

A HACKNEY playwright, theatre producer and drama school founder has been awarded an MBE for services to acting in this year's Queen's birthday honours list.

Olufemi Ogunsanwo, better known as Femi Oguns, founded Identity School of Acting in 2003 with just a few hundred pounds of his own money. The aim was to spot raw talent in Hackney and provide people from multi-cultural backgrounds with paid employment.

Former pupils have gone on to make a name for themselves in the industry, including John Boyega, who starred in Spike Lee's HBO drama 'Da Brick', and Adelayo Adedayo, who made her debut in gangster film 'Sket'. Femi originally studied drama in London and went on to secure TV and film roles, as well as penning award-winning play, 'Torn', which enjoyed a successful run at the Arcola Theatre in Dalston.

He also set up another acting school in Birmingham, and a talent agency in Covent Garden; Identity Agency Group. Hackney has been an inspiration for Femi. He said: "It's vibrant, it's alive – enough to form any play on."

Over 3,000 Hackney pupils have spent months working to improve their personal bests in a range of sports

Simply the best

Personal Bests encourages Hackney students to try as hard as they can to beat their own results

MORE than 3,000 pupils from across the borough have spent months working to boost their performance in a range of sports.

They were taking part in Personal Bests, a Council 2012 legacy programme, now in its seventh year. It aims to improve the health and wellbeing of young people, and prove that everyone can enjoy sport, no matter what their ability.

More than 500 pupils, with the biggest improvements in their individual performance, took part in the Personal Bests finals held at Hackney

“It’s great to see that the Olympic legacy in Hackney is still going strong. Personal Bests shows sport can be enjoyed by all”

Marshes on 2 July. They were representing 42 borough schools and displayed their skills in sports including long jump, triple jump, soft javelin, shot put, and 60 metre sprint.

Hackney swimmer Dervis Konuralp, who represented Great Britain at four Paralympic Games, opened proceedings.

He said: “It’s great to see that the Olympic legacy in Hackney is still going strong. Personal Bests shows sport can and should be enjoyed by all.”

Grasmere Primary School took first place after its pupils achieved the most personal bests; Queensbridge Primary School came second; and third place went to Mandeville Primary School.

Year Five Grasmere pupil, Charlie, said: “Personal Bests changed my mind about sport. Before I wasn’t sporty because normally people shout at you if you are not very good. At Personal Bests you are encouraged to do your best and I really enjoyed beating my personal best.”

Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, was at the Marshes to hand out medals to the winners.

He said: "The number of pupils taking part in Personal Bests just keeps growing and growing and I want to congratulate all those who have taken part.

"Personal Bests is about recognising and rewarding those who have done their utmost to improve themselves – many of whom may never have had the opportunity to compete before.

"The message is an important one: do your best in what you do and no one can ask any more of you."

The long days of summer

S EVEN local artists have each designed a postcard, featuring famous borough landmarks, to celebrate Hackney in summertime.

The free, limited edition postcards can be picked up from venues across the borough and capture iconic scenes of Hackney's seven town centres: Clapton, Dalston, Shoreditch, Victoria Park, Stoke Newington, Hackney Wick and Hackney Central.

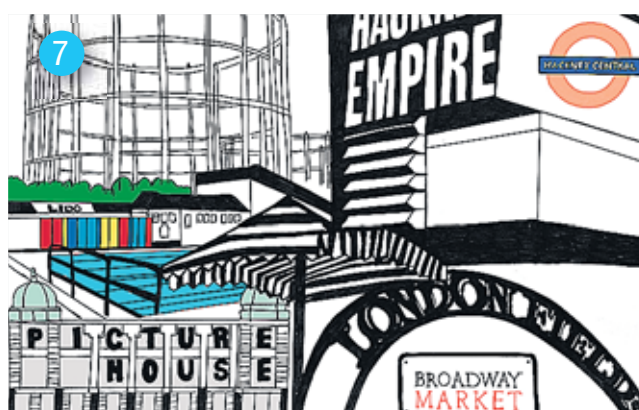

Artist Jane Smith, who designed the Dalston postcard, said:

"I loved creating a summer postcard of the neighbourhood in which I have lived for 20 years.

"I felt instantly at home when I moved here and it has lost none of its freshness and interest – in fact it gets better year-on-year. Hackney has a real sense of community and a never ending range of things to do indoors and out. There is a thriving creative and art scene, lovely parks, cool shops, cafes, swimming pools, interesting buildings, and the canal. I can't think of a place I would rather live."

Cabinet Member for Regeneration, added: "These postcards bring together the outstanding creativity that Hackney is known for, showing off the unique neighbourhoods that make our borough a great place to live and visit.

"When you're out and about, why not try to collect the whole set, and remember to send them to friends, encouraging them to visit and enjoy a Hackney summer too.

Cool riders

Over 500 cyclists took part in Bike Around The Borough; a nine mile cycle across Hackney

ALMOST 400 pupils from 26 Hackney schools took part in Bike Around The Borough: one of London's largest-ever bike rides for young people.

A total of 533 children and adults completed the nine mile bike ride on 12 June, which began at Clissold Park.

The riders then passed through Hackney Downs, before stopping for lunch in Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park, where they were greeted by a cycling samba rickshaw and live music from Five-O, a band featuring police officers.

“ Bike Around The Borough... has established itself as one of the highlights of the cycling calendar in Hackney ”

During the break, youngsters watched and took part in a BMX display.

Disco bikes from Cyclehoop and a couple of penny farthing riders also added to the carnival atmosphere.

Bike Around The Borough is a chance for students to practise skills learned during cycle training sessions and to realise how easy it is to travel by bike.

The Council offers all schools in the borough free cycle training for year six pupils. Last year alone, 887 youngsters took part in the programme. Teachers were also trained as marshals to help lead their school group in the mass ride.

Cllr Feryal Dermici, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: “Every year Bike Around The Borough grows in popularity. It is still one of my favourite events of the year and has established itself as one of the highlights of the cycling calendar in Hackney.

“It is a fantastic achievement getting so

Hackney has been recognised nationally for its innovative approach to encouraging cycling.

Free cycle training, 20 mph limits on residential roads, and awareness training for HGV drivers have contributed to the fact that the borough now has the highest rate of cycling amongst London residents.

Bike Around The Borough is organised by the Council in partnership with the Hackney Police Safer Transport Team. This year it was sponsored by Findon Homes.

Speaking for the community

HACKNEY'S longest-serving councillor, Cllr Sharon Patrick, has been unveiled as the borough's first citizen.

It is the second time Cllr Patrick, who has served on the Council for nearly 26 years, has taken the chain of office, having already served as Speaker of Hackney in 2002.

She said: "This is the best job in the business and I'm delighted and honoured to be given the chance to do it again. I'm looking forward to getting out and about and meeting people. I'll be supporting residents and businesses across Hackney and getting to know the different communities better."

During her term, she will be raising money for Laburnum Boat Club, on the Regent's Canal in Haggerston, which supports the personal development of young people, including those with disabilities.

She will also be raising money for The Sharp End, a fitness and friendship support group for the borough's over 50s; and The Alzheimer's Society, a cause close to Cllr Patrick's heart following the death of her mother from the disease.

“Being the Speaker of Hackney is the best job in the business and I'm delighted and honoured to be given the chance to do it”

Cllr Patrick describes herself as a 'Cockney lass', having lived in the borough all her adult life, and says she is 'proud and excited' by the transformation she has witnessed first hand.

She said: "Hackney's a great place: lively, bubbly, full of mixed cultures. It's a place where everyone gets on. I have seen it change over the last few years to become the place-to-be in London, with an incredible amount of exciting things to do and see."

Cllr Patrick's first official engagement in June saw her welcome 60 of the borough's newest residents during a citizenship ceremony in Hackney Town Hall. She said: "I loved it and can't wait to do more of them. Hackney has always been a place that is open to everyone and where no one is excluded."

The 57-year-old mum-of-three has two great passions in life: volunteering and real ale, and she hopes to combine the two when she attends the Pig's Ear Festival at the Round Chapel, Clapton, in December, in a celebration of brewing excellence and fundraising.

She said: "I'm really looking forward to the festival and the best thing is they'll be collecting for my charities! Hackney is a hotspot of micro-breweries, with at least nine in the borough, and that's a great thing to see."

Cllr Patrick sits on the management committee of the Hackney Marsh Partnership, a community project group, and she believes volunteering is the essential glue in Hackney's social fabric.

"Without volunteers many of our services and groups would be worse off," she said. Adding: "I will be having a reception for volunteers to thank them for what they do."

The Speaker is elected annually by other serving councillors. Cllr Patrick takes over from Cllr Michael Desmond and admits he will be a tough act to follow.

She said: "I have a lot to live up to. He was a brilliant fundraiser and was great at getting on with people."

Repair and reuse to reduce waste

SOME 1,000 free lunches were served up in London Fields – made with a budget of just £680 – which is the value of the amount of edible food the average family throws away in a year.

The giveaway was part of a Repair, Reuse, Reduce and Eat day on 28 June, held to promote food waste reduction, and to help residents fix broken electronic goods.

Visitors brought printers, laptops, mobiles and other dead devices to the ‘restart party’ tent to be repaired. They could also learn how to fix things for themselves. Of the 37 items seen on the day, only four were beyond repair.

At the ‘give or take’ tent, residents were encouraged to bring items they did not need and take away things they did. Over one tonne of books, clothes, furniture, and toys found new homes.

There was also a ‘waste less, lunch free’ tent offering cooking demonstrations, information and freebies to help people reduce food waste and save money.

Coral Westaway, from Clapton, attended the event with her friend Heather Kelly. Coral said: “We were just walking past and found the ‘waste less, lunch free’ stall. I was astonished that they were making 1,000 portions of food with the amount of money one family wastes on throwing away food in a year.”

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: “Every year people throw away thousands of tonnes of food, as well as items that could be repaired or reused. Disposing of it is a waste of tax payers’ money as well as being bad for the environment.

“We hope this event showed people that what they think of as rubbish might not have reached the end of its life just yet.”

The event was hosted by the Council in partnership with the North London Waste Authority, Keep Britain Tidy, Sustainable Hackney and Friends of the Earth.

News in brief

Community garden given a makeover by volunteers

VOLUNTEERS from Kingsmead Estate, E9, have completed a community garden makeover which is set to bring a splash of colour to the area this summer.

Led by national charity Groundwork, the project transformed the unused space into a pretty garden for residents and visitors to enjoy.

Residents had a say in the type of garden they wanted and helped pick the plants that now feature.

Materials for the garden were donated by Travis Perkins and Sanctuary Maintenance. The project was funded by Sanctuary Housing.

Carol Pond, estates staff supervisor at Sanctuary Maintenance, said: “Everybody chipped in to do their bit and it was great to work alongside the residents and other volunteers. The makeover has made the space more attractive on the eye for everybody in the estate.”

Joanne Revett, neighbourhood partnerships manager at Sanctuary Housing, added: “There has been a real sense of people coming together at all stages of the project. The garden is now somewhere that people can appreciate.”

New social enterprise encourages people to explore the great outdoors

A NEW social enterprise that aims to get people to explore the outdoors celebrated its launch with an expedition to Mount Snowdon and a screening of the documentary film ‘Project Wild Thing’.

Outdoor People took a group of families from the borough and beyond on a trip to the highest mountain in England and Wales on 10 May.

The social enterprise was set up with the aim of getting families to spend more time outdoors, after its founders were inspired by the ‘Project Wild Thing’ film, which seeks to re-engage children and young people with nature.

Cath Prisk, who has lived in Hackney for 12 years, said: “We’re here to reinforce the message of the film and inspire families to get off the sofa and out into the wild, even if it’s just steps from your front door.”

Annabel Arden, 11, from Stoke Newington said: “It’s been such a fun day! Being outdoors just makes you feel so wild and your imagination can go further.

“I love going outdoors, even if it’s just playing in the street. The best thing about the walk, despite the weather, was the views.”

PREVIEW

The Hackney Volpone

From 23 July - 9 August, The Rose Lipman Building, 43 De Beauvoir Rd, N1 5SQ

NEW play 'The Hackney Volpone' is based on a work by Jacobean playwright Ben Jonson and has been brought up-to-date by director Anna Jones and co-creator Jamel Rodriguez.

It is a classic comedy about obsessive greed and a con that threatens to spin out of control. In just one day, three years of deception finally catches up with nobleman Volpone and his faithful servant Mosca, leading to a series of unexpected events. Aspiring actors will be cast alongside established professionals including Karina

Fernandez, whose films include Mike Leigh's 'Happy Go Lucky', and Amara Karan, whose RSC credits include 'Much Ado About Nothing' and 'Taming Of The Shrew'.

Director Anna Jones said: "We hope to create a non-traditional, highly theatrical and irreverent take on Jonson's play about greed, lust and betrayal."

Theatre company NYLon Projects is set to bring the play to the Rose Lipman Building, in partnership with The Mill Co. Project, from 23 July to 9 August. The project is supported by the Arts Council.

REVIEW

Carousel

Until 19 July, Arcola Theatre, 24 Ashwin Street, E8 3DL

RODGERS and Hammerstein's classic musical 'Carousel' is showing at the Arcola Theatre, Dalston. Directed by Luke Fredericks, the original World War Two production has been given a fresh makeover. Set in a small and intimate space in the Arcola's Studio 1, the actors make full use of the stage, weaving ballet, modern dance and acrobatics between songs and dialogue. Circus performers hang from ladders high up in Stewart Charlesworth's imaginative set, while a live five-piece orchestra is tucked neatly into the mezzanine.

The storyline follows Julie Jordan and Billy Bigelow's tumultuous relationship against the backdrop of Depression-hit New England. A snapshot into a small-time American seaside town, the period setting for this production has been shifted forward into the early/mid 20th century from the original 1875 setting. Gemma Sutton plays the innocent-yet-stoical Julie brilliantly, opposite the cocky and gruff Billy (Tim Rogers), who has the audience on the edge of their seats with his mood swings – ultimately ending in his suicide.

A welcome change of pace and light relief takes place during the interweaving subplot scenes – which focuses on Julie's best friend Nettie Fowler (Amanda Minihan) and her betrothed, the simple-yet-ambitious Enoch Snow (Joel Montague).

During the three hour production the audience are treated to 18 songs, including hits 'You'll Never Walk Alone', 'If I Loved You' and 'June is Bustin' Out All Over.'

The real highlight of Fredericks' production of 'Carousel' is experiencing a bold and brash musical in a cosy and intimate setting.

Call to politics

YOUNG people have the chance to follow in the footsteps of Hackney's 'singing politician', Jermain Jackman, as nominations for Hackney Youth Parliament (HYP) open.

Jermain (pictured), who won the talent show 'The Voice', was a HYP member, which helped nurture his passion for politics.

The parliament is made up of 24 elected representatives, aged 11 to 19, who care about the borough and want to speak on behalf of their peers. Voting takes place at schools and Young Hackney centres in October. At the last election in 2012, more than 6,000 young people cast their vote.

“If you want to change things you have to listen, you have to act, you have to take part”

Jermain, 19, who was a HYP member from 2010-2012, urged young people to get involved. He said: “I started my journey with HYP. If you want to change things you have to listen, you have to act, you have to take part.”

The parliament consults young people on their views, makes sure their voices are heard, and keeps them up-to-date on issues that affect them. They also plan events, elect representatives to the national UK Youth Parliament and attend various events.

Young people who put themselves forward for election will be required to attend a training session over the summer holiday to help them prepare their manifesto. If elected they will attend fortnightly meetings at the Council's Forest Road Young Hackney Centre.

Cllr Anntoinette Bramble, Cabinet Member for Children's Services, said: “Hackney is full of passionate young people who want to make a difference, and this is the opportunity for them to get involved in the decisions we make as a Council.

“This isn't playing at politics; our youth parliament has real influence and I'm looking forward to working with the new members who will be representing the young people of Hackney.”

Young people vote according to the area they live in or the school they attend. Applications close on 23 July.

News In Brief

Outstanding Hackney musician

A TALENTED seven-year-old from Hackney has been recognised at the London Music Awards (LMAs). Daniel Aidoo, from Kingsmead Primary School, was the youngest of four people to receive an Outstanding Mayor's Music Scholar award at the star-studded event for his exceptional talent with the djembe drum. The awards celebrated some of the capital's most talented individuals, including Lord Lloyd Webber and Soul II Soul's Jazzie B.

Hackney's own Jermain Jackman also performed at the Roundhouse in Camden on 11 June. The event was organised to raise money for the Mayor's Music Fund, which, in the past two years, has awarded grants totalling £1.3million to 14,000 young musicians.

The very best of British music

SCHOOLCHILDREN from Grazebrook and Shacklewell primary schools are set to display their musical talents in a review of hit tunes from the past five decades. The youngsters, aged from five to 11, will perform a 'Best of British' showcase, which celebrates music from the 1960s up until the present day.

Pupils have been coached for these performances by professional tutors from The Voice, Pineapple Dance Studios, and Unity UK.

The show will take place at Stoke Newington Town Hall on 16 July at 6pm; and 17 July, at 2pm and 6pm.

Last year, Grazebrook and Shacklewell Primary Schools performed a rendition of 'Back to the Future'

Bringing books to life with the schools' Carnegie literary competition

Pupils from Mossbourne Academy with author Katherine Rundell

TOP children's author Katherine Rundell helped judge a Hackney schools' literary challenge.

Eight schools took part in the Carnegie competition. It involved pupils giving a presentation about one of eight books which were shortlisted for this year's Carnegie prize – one of the biggest awards in children's literature – including Katherine's story 'Rooftoppers'.

Pupils used art, drama, dance, music and moving images to express their thoughts and feelings about the works.

The winning school was Mossbourne Academy with their presentation on 'Rooftoppers'. Other schools involved were Bridge, Clapton Girls', Petchey and Skinners' academies and Cardinal Pole, The Urswick and Stoke Newington schools.

Cllr Anntoinette Bramble, Cabinet Member for Children's Services and Education, said: “Our Carnegie competition helps bring books to life and encourages children to get talking about literature. They get the opportunity to read some brand new books, meet one of the authors and then enjoy the excitement of seeing who wins the national prize, days after the event.

“Congratulations to the winning school and to all those who took part for some excellent presentations.”

The Edge youth hub turns one

YOUNG Hackney's The Edge youth centre marked its first birthday with a two day celebration.

The weekend of events, on 7 to 8 June, coincided with Hackney Homes' Woodberry Down fun day. Residents were given tours of the building, and some of its core programmes – including boxing, music production and carnival arts – were showcased.

A ceremony took place to thank some of the young users for helping to make it such a successful first year. Tishawn Thams and Khadidja Benfetouha were named 'most valuable participants of the year' for leadership skills demonstrated on a recent Devon residential and their contribution to the Hackney North Youth Forum.

“Just one year after opening its doors The Edge has become a key part of the local community”

The Edge is open six days a week, offering a range of activities and support for young people including music, drama, sports, advice on wellbeing, training programmes and jobs.

Highlights of the centre's first year included: eight holiday programmes; the establishment of the Hackney North Youth Forum; the launch of a youth-led working at heights and grounds maintenance social enterprise, which saw a group of young people start their own window cleaning business; four of the centre's young people being elected to the Hackney Youth Parliament; and various day trips.

Cllr Antoinette Bramble, Cabinet Member for Children's Services, said: "Just one year after opening its doors The Edge has become a key part of the local community. It's a safe place for young people to try out new activities, learn life skills or just spend some time with their friends."

Young Hackney's Forest Road Centre wins top community award for London

THE Forest Road Young Hackney centre has been recognised for making a big difference to the community in Dalston.

The Royal Institute of Chartered Surveyors presented the centre with its award for community benefit which recognises outstanding achievement in 'providing a facility which directly benefits the local community'. It was also named project of the year for London and will now go through to a national final.

Forest Road opened in 2012, as part of the Council's £5million investment in Hackney's youth centres, which saw five hubs across the borough built or refurbished.

Forest Road is home to the Hackney Youth Parliament, as well as a huge range of targeted and universal services, including holiday activities and drop-in sports sessions.

Before starting work on the centre, Matthew Lloyd Architects consulted with young people on the look of the building.

This helped win the award, along with its range of activities and excellent feedback from the young people who use it.

Cllr Antoinette Bramble, Cabinet Member for Children's Services, said: "We're really proud of our Young Hackney centres, so it's great to have Forest Road recognised."

Cut Films to cut smoking

YOUNG people were given the red carpet treatment as they arrived at the awards ceremony for the Hackney Cut Films competition at the Rio Cinema, Dalston.

Cut Films is an innovative education project that provides free workshops in the borough so young people can produce a short anti-smoking film.

It is funded by the Council, which has worked alongside Cut Films over the past six months to engage over 500 young people from Hackney schools and youth groups in the project.

This year, 47 films made in the borough were entered into the competition.

The winners in the under 11s category were Hackney Quest youth club with their film 'Ask Mum And Dad'.

Caitlin Palmer O'Shaughnessy, from Stoke Newington School, won the 12 to 15 category with '15 And Counting'.

'Fear The Reaper' by Shayne Moore and Godwin Tandoh, of Hackney Community College, took first prize in the 16 to 19 category, while classmate Ethan Chinyere won the outstanding effort prize for his film 'All For The Smoke'.

Harrington Hill, London Fields, and Holmleigh primary schools all celebrated a win and took the prizes for young judges' choice, best collaboration, and special effort.

Tycho Jones, Lucas Green,

Harrison O'Garro, and Jurgen Ferizaj, of Stoke Newington School, claimed the awards for judges' choice and people's choice for their film 'Take Care Of Your Lungs'.

The awards were presented by Samson Kayo of hit C4 show 'Youngers', director Mo Ali, and Youth Parliament member Ife Grillo. All of the Hackney films have been entered into the national Cut Films competition.

Some of the films have also been selected by the Rio Cinema to be shown as a trailer at their weekly school screening events.

New children's service at Norwood's Somers Centre

HOMERTON hospital has teamed up with the Somers Children and Family Centre to launch a new service.

The N16 centre (also known as Norwood) is now running a healthy child programme, which focuses on early prevention and providing good foundations for future health. Based in Lordship Road, the centre offers services for the orthodox and wider Jewish community.

Homerton provides health care advice and services, including immunisations, child development reviews, and a programme to prevent obesity in children.

Marcia Smikle, head of community nursing for children, said: "We welcome the opportunity to provide health-focused services alongside existing well-used activities provided by Norwood."

Diane Abbott, MP for Hackney North and Stoke Newington, and chairman of Homerton University Hospital NHS Trust, Tim Melville-Ross, attended the launch of the programme, along with parents, staff and members of the community on 17 June at the Somers Centre.

News in brief

Get wild walking in Hackney

YOUNG hikers in Hackney can choose from one of three fun walks around the borough to keep fit this summer. The routes, aimed at families and young people, go from Haggerston to Hoxton, taking in a giant snake and stone circle; Woodberry Down to West Reservoir, where residents will encounter castles and wizards; and Hackney Marsh, where there are hidden playgrounds. The Hackney Wild Walks guide, which was published in the last issue of Hackney Today, is also available to download at: news.hackney.gov.uk/wild-walks; or pick up a copy at Hackney children's centres and libraries. Walkers are encouraged to share their walks on twitter @hackneyFIS using the #hackneywildwalks hashtag, or on: www.facebook.com/hackneyFIS

New health grants available

NEW funding for innovative projects, which will help improve the health and wellbeing of residents, is available for voluntary sector groups. Council grants of up to £30,000 will be offered to charities, social enterprises and other eligible organisations to help address some of the health issues in the borough. This includes tackling smoking, reducing rates of childhood obesity, and improving residents' mental health.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: "We recognise the great contribution that community groups can make in tackling these key issues, and are excited by the chance to work closer with them to make a difference."

The scheme will launch in September. For more information, or to apply, e-mail: publichealth@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 3349.

CLISSOLD Park is celebrating its 125th anniversary this year, having first opened to the public on 24 July, 1889.

This crowned a campaign led by local dignitaries Joseph Beck and John Runtz – who are commemorated with a water fountain and two lakes named after them – Becksmere and Runtzmere.

Clissold's design led Lord Eversley, a prominent campaigner for parks, to say it was 'one of the most beautifully laid-out and planted parks', a sentiment many have since shared.

It underwent great changes during the First World War as much of it was turned into 600 allotments to grow produce that could no longer be imported into the country due to the conflict.

Even though hostilities ended in 1918, it was not until at least 1920 that the park was returned to its former state. The same practice happened during the Second World War, and although food is still grown in Clissold Park, it is on a much smaller basis than during both the wars.

The park hosted a big parade on 14 August, 1944, which saw over 5,000 people watch the 9th County of London Home Guard demonstrate their drill skills, with extremely intricate marching and counter-marching, before they staged mock assaults on a farm house.

From 1952 to 1964, the Metropolitan Borough of Stoke Newington held an annual 'Field Day' event in the park. These brought together a wide range of local organisations. For example, those in attendance in 1964 ranged from the Stoke Newington Gardeners' Guild and the Stoke Newington Gramophone Society, to the Stoke Newington Civil Defence Corps, and the Stoke Newington branch of the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament.

One event at the final Field Day was called 'Back In History', which involved pupils from Daniel Defoe School and members of the Risinghill Fencing Club playing out a number of 17th century tableaux, where spectators watched boys stick-fighting, men fencing and maidens sword-dancing.

Clissold Park also hosted a range of other large events, including the 1977 Hackney Show. The programme for the day promised massed bands, a medieval combat display, and Tarzan stunt-girl Jacqueline Ricardo.

The Hackney Gazette reported that despite heavy rain the throng who turned out enjoyed the day, with clowns, a cage bird show and Jubilee flower show.

There was better weather during the 1981

Finsbury Park Carnival. The parade left Clissold Park, winding its way through Stoke Newington and Highbury to Finsbury Park, before retracing its steps later on.

Thousands of people enjoyed the steel and Latin bands, while revellers in fantastic costumes danced through the streets of North London.

Clockwise from main: 1. Group of children in front of the old bandstand in Clissold Park, c.1910; 2. A poster for Field Day, 1964; 3. Boy Scouts, soldiers and Red Cross nurses at an Empire Day ceremony in Clissold Park, 24 May 1924; 4. Relaxing on a park bench in Clissold Park, 1930; 5. Opening ceremony of the Clissold Park Bowling Green, c.1914

Since 1993, Clissold Park has also been the venue for the annual Stoke Newington Festival.

Sports facilities have long been one of the park's attractions. Tennis courts and a bowling green were built 90 years ago, while in 1922 quoits and croquet were also played.

Occasionally more unusual sporting competitions have been held in the park, for example, the 1989 Hackney Irish Festival saw hurling and camogie (an Irish stick-and-ball team sport played by women) tournaments.

For more information on events to mark the 125th anniversary of the park, visit: www.clissoldpark.com/events/

The Mayor and councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections took place in May 2014.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services. They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern. Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see. Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – see map below.

MAYOR JULES PIPE

Hackney has an executive Mayor, Jules Pipe, who is not a councillor, but is directly elected by the entire borough. The Mayor is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of Hackney who is elected annually from among the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Sharon Patrick.

Maqluba

Serves 4

Preparation time

30 mins

Cooking time

1 hour

THIS rice and chicken dish is layered, baked and turned onto a platter. It's a version of the celebrated Arabic recipe maqluba, which means upside-down.

Ingredients

- 450g plain yoghurt
- 2 garlic cloves, crushed
- 2 tbsp lemon juice
- handful of raisins (for decoration)
- 1 orange, juiced
- 5 tbsp olive oil
- 3-4 chicken breasts, without skin
- 1 tsp cinnamon
- 2 medium onions, finely sliced
- ¼ tsp turmeric
- 350g basmati rice
- 2 egg yolks
- ½ tsp saffron threads
- 2 tbsp melted butter
- a handful of flaked almonds (for decoration)
- pomegranate (optional).

grinds of pepper. Cover and put in the fridge to chill

- Put the raisins in a small bowl of boiling water with the orange juice, and leave them to plump
- Heat 2 tbsp of olive oil on a pan on a medium heat, and sizzle the chicken breasts for 5 minutes on each side, till golden. Remove, slice into chunks and allow to cool
- Add another tablespoon of oil and gently fry the onions with tumeric and a little salt and pepper. When the onion is soft, add it to the chicken pieces and set aside
- Put the rice and 1 tsp of salt into a medium saucepan and add water so that it rises 5cm above the rice. Cover, bring to the boil, then lower the heat and cook for 7 minutes. Drain and rinse the rice so that it won't continue to cook
- Whisk the egg yolks with the remaining 200g of yoghurt, saffron and a little salt and pepper. Add half the cooked rice, stir and set aside. Coat a high-sided baking dish with melted butter and 2 tbsp of olive oil. Spoon the yoghurt and rice mixture in a smooth layer. Then add the chicken and onion in another layer
- Mix the remaining rice with a dash of olive oil, stir and add to the top of the dish. Cover with aluminium foil and bake for 45 minutes.

Method

- Preheat the oven to 200°C. To make the side sauce for this dish, mix 250g of yoghurt with the garlic, lemon juice, a pinch of salt and a few

This recipe was suggested by Mutaz Abubakar. Mutaz is Sudanese, but moved to Saudi Arabia to work as a chef. When he came to the UK, Mutaz was a service user at the Hackney Migrant Centre; now he regularly volunteers in its kitchen. Once a week the centre provides a nutritious lunch for refugees and asylum seekers, as well as advice, support and a safe environment.

Have your say on how local authorities should deliver the care and support reforms in relation to the Care Act 2014

THE Government is seeking residents' views on how local authorities should deliver reforms to care and support services.

The Department of Health is currently holding a consultation on draft regulations and guidance for implementation of the Care Act 2014.

The guidance is intended to provide local authorities – including Hackney – with the information they need about how to meet legal obligations relating to adult social care under the Act.

The guidance will be used by Council officers to plan care and support at a local level, as well as by health practitioners.

It can also help people using care and support services, their families, the voluntary sector and care providers to understand the new system.

For more info, and to have your say, visit: www.careandsupportregs.dh.gov.uk; or e-mail: careactconsultation@dh.gsi.gov.uk

The consultation runs until 15 August. Changes resulting from the consultation will come into effect from next April.
